The salsa comes in two great flavors —mild and spicy. The mild has a fresh, mellow flavor and the spicy version, made with organic chile peppers and jalapeños, gives a kick without leaving your mouth burning.

GourMom, also known as Sarah Galluzzo, and her team make all of the salsas in small batches in a commercial kitchen in Fairfield, Connecticut. Galluzzo says she created the GourMom brand for three reasons:

1. To create a delicious, USDA-certified organic salsa that tastes great and promotes good health. "Good quality food tastes better and making local organics delicious to children is important to me," Galluzzo says.
2. To support local farms and sustainable agriculture. Using local food systems is a better ecological and economic alternative to the global corporate model.
3. To promote good stewardship by giving approximately 5 percent of GourMom's projects to charities such as Shriners Hospitals for Children.

Check out GourMom's recipe page for ideas on how to create delicious meals using the salsas.

The salsas cost $7 per jar. Purchase GourMom's Organic Salsa at local shops in Fairfield, Connecticut, Whole Foods in Westport, Connecticut, or online.
